BIO

My research lies at the intersection of Law, Communication and Computer Science, focusing on technology governance, AI evaluation, and information privacy. I have multiple experiences cooperated with scientists from CS, proficient in both doctrinal research (a traditional legal writing pattern) and computing method (using LLMs to analyze data).

RESEARCH EXPERIENCES

Research Assistant, Institute for Network Sciences and Cyberspace, Tsinghua University 2026.05 – Present

– AI Deception Project. Participated in the experimental design, ensuring that the true outcomes were visible to all members of the group chat.

Research Assistant, Alibaba DAMO Academy 2025.08 – 2026.01

– PLawBench Project. Co-designed a comprehensive rubric-based benchmark featuring over 12,500 metrics and 850 questions across 13 legal domains. Drafted the detailed evaluation rubric from scratch, while directly training and supervising a team of data annotators to ensure high-fidelity, consistent assessments. Through this standardized pipeline, managed the systematic evaluation of 10+ state-of-the-art LLMs to identify critical performance gaps in legal reasoning and drafting.

– Court Simulation Project. Co-architected an LLM-based multi-agent system designed to simulate authentic courtroom dynamics with specialized roles, including Judge, Lawyer, and Witness. Led the end-to-end data collection process by independently building a robust database sourced exclusively from complex Chinese and International Law moot court competition problems.

Research Assistant, Institute for Studies on AI and Law, Tsinghua University 2025.08 – 2026.01

– Policy Translation. Compiled technology law newsletters synthesizing legislative and regulatory developments; translated national standard contractual clauses for cross-border data entrustment between Chinese and English.

– Comment Drafting. Monitored guidance from the EU EDPB and UK ICO to track global data governance trends; authored a comprehensive research report on the EU “Digital Omnibus” reform agenda, analyzing its implications for digital market regulation and platform accountability.

SERVICE EXPERIENCES

Associate Chief Editor, CUPL Law Review 2025.05 – Present

– Publishing Management. Oversee the full editorial process for submissions — soliciting manuscripts, coordinating double-blind peer review, and managing production to ensure rigorous publication standards. Supervised the 2025 Issue 2 pipeline.

– Event Setting. Organized training workshops on AI-assisted academic writing for 50+ participants; led the journal’s annual symposium and spearheaded networking initiatives with legal scholars and peer law reviews nationwide.

Teaching Assistant, CUPL Law School 2023.06

– Recorded student attendance and graded coursework assignments.
